ABOUT US

SHELL'S QGC BUSINESS IS LOCATED IN QUEENSLAND IN EASTERN AUSTRALIA.

We're one of Australia's leading natural gas producers, focused on developing Queensland's world-class onshore gas reserves.

Shell's QGC business has supplied the domestic market since 2006 and international customers since 2014.

We operate an 8.5 million tonne per year liquified natural gas (LNG) plant on Curtis Island near Gladstone, and natural gas operations, which include wells, compression stations and processing plants, in Queensland's Surat Basin.

Shell is the operator and majority interest holder in the QGC Joint Venture. Our partners in the LNG plant on Curtis Island are CNOOC (50% equity in Train 1) and Tokyo Gas (2.5% equity in Train 2).

RESPONSIBLE OPERATIONS

Operating safely and sustainably for the community and the environment is our first priority.

Shell's QGC business has worked with local communities, landholders, governments, regulators and industry to develop a rigorous legislative framework for natural gas activities in Queensland.

We provide broad community benefits, create jobs and business opportunities and we've helped rejuvenate rural communities, supplement farm incomes, increase school enrolments and improve health services.

Shell's QGC business works in partnership with farmers to ensure our operations and agriculture can coexist – an approach that has resulted in more than 2,100 voluntary land access agreements.
